

The Global Sustainability Project Fact Sheet 2018-19 School Year

Sponsor: The Picerne Family Foundation has created and is sponsoring the Global Sustainability Project (GSP) in collaboration with the Advanced Placement Environmental Studies program at El Modena High School (EMHS) and the Earthwatch Institute.

Objectives: (1) to broaden students' understanding of another culture; (2) to experience conservation and sustainability issues of another country; and (3) to make a direct contribution to solving local environmental sustainability issues.

Program: There are three aspects to the GSP program.

1. Expedition Preparation. Students will spend time in lunch and/or after school meetings during the 2018/19 school year with Ms. Quihuiz to learn more about the ecology, culture, and history of South Africa.
2. Overseas expedition. During the summer 2019, students will participate in a 12-day international research expedition conducted by Earthwatch to study endangered rhinos in a South African wildlife preserve and national park. This will be a EMHS student-only expedition accompanied by Ms. Quihuiz. Students will depart for South Africa in August 2019.
3. Service. Prior to departure on the overseas research expedition, students are required to contribute 40 hours of meaningful volunteer work on a sustainability project, approved by Ms. Quihuiz, at a local conservancy, university or ecological nonprofit organization.

Eligibility: To participate, students must be a junior taking an Advanced Placement or Honors course in any subject at EMHS and have a minimum overall 3.0 GPA.

Expenses: The Picerne Family Foundation will provide scholarships for up to 10 students that will cover airfare and the cost of the expedition. Students will be responsible for obtaining a passport, inoculations, gear and all other related expenses. Limited financial assistance will be available for students unable to meet all of these expenses.

Time Commitment: Students will:

- Meet after school and on weekends as needed with Ms. Quihuiz. The meetings will be devoted to expedition preparation, research, and field trips.
- Volunteer 40 hours in 2018/19 working on a local sustainability project at a local conservancy, university or ecological nonprofit organization chosen by Ms. Quihuiz.
- Journalize and document their volunteer project with photos, and present this experience to foundation members, parents, peers and community members upon the completion of the project.
